

Prunus domestica 'Angelina'

ANGELINA EUROPEAN PLUM

This is a very sweet and juicy European Plum with firm, yellow flesh. Typical of European Plum varieties, this has dark purple skin and is freestone. Form is upright and spreading which makes the fruit easy to pick. Requires a pollinator.

Fruit is good for eating, drying and in preserves.

Plant in a sunny position with well-drained and well-worked soil. Take care to plant the bud union above the soil level. Water in well and keep the soil moist until the tree is established. Fertilise when planting and again after new growth appears. Prune tree when planting to encourage new growth.
